Hagst, August 23. O. S.

THE Commission at Antwerp for regulating the Tariff is now opened, but when, or what, will be the Issue of it, 'tis impossible to foretell, it being apprehended there will be great Debates. But tho' such Apprehension seems too well founded, yet 'tis not believed that France will openly support the Interests of the Brabanders, for fear of provoking this Republick; which, on her Part, is not backward in her Complaisance to that Monarchy. Nevertheless, by the Demands which the Emperor makes, and which his Commissioners at Antwerp have Orders to lay before those of the States-General, it may be suspected that the Ministry of Versailles is privy to them, if they were not drawn up in Concert. They are in Substance these:

1. That their High-Mightinesses consent to a Diminution of the Subsidies which were granted to them by the Barrier-Treaty, to the End that the States of Brabant and Flanders may not be oppressed with a greater Weight than they can bear, by paying Sums which 'tis out of their Power to raise.

2. That in Case their High-Mightinesses will not consent to the Diminution of the Subsidies, as forefaid, they will at least agree to the Emperor's having a smaller Number of Troops on Foot in the Netherlands; in which they may acquiesce the more readily, because considering the great Alteration that has happened in the System, which is quite another Thing to what it was, they have nothing to fear from France; and that therefore this great Number of Troops, stipulated at a Critical Juncture, is of no Service at the present Time, and nothing more nor less than a heavy Charge upon the Netherlands.

3. That his Imperial Majesty's only Aim being to procure for his Subjects of the Austrian Netherlands some Advantage, with Regard to their Commerce and Manufactures, in Hopes of making them Amends thereby for the Prohibition of the Navigation from Ostend to the East-Indies, he makes no Doubt of obtaining what he demands: And in Case that, contrary to all Expectation, this should miscarry in a Course of Negotiation, his Imperial Majesty will look upon himself as discharged and freed from the 26th Article of the Barrier-Treaty; and may then probably draw up such a Tariff as he shall think most advantageous for his Subjects of the Netherlands.

It may be observed, there is no mention in these Demands, of sending any Ship to the Indies, nor of limiting the Ostend Trade; tho' it is not impossible but in Time such Clauses may be started. Mean while 'tis apparent, that the Court of Vienna intent upon obtaining its Demands, because they are accompany'd with a Sort of Menace. But, say some People, if the Emperor's Union with France emboldens him to talk in such a strain now, what may not be expected hereafter, if his Arms should have all the Success against the Turks that he can desire? So apt is Prosperity to sink the Understanding, and raise the Imagination!

The Issue of the Affair of Berg and Juliers is altogether as far beyond the Guess of our Politicians, as the former. They all agree, in short, that Things are at present in a very wavering Situation; and they are not insensible, that 'tis the affected Policy of several Courts, to give out Rumours that are extraordinary, and even contradictory, on Purpose to puzzle and mislead the Judgment of the Publick.

By a Flanders Mail we have Advice from Brussels, that last Friday Se'nnight dy'd there that venerable Soldier, Fabian Count de Wrangel, who was Governor of the said City, and a Velt-Marshall of the Emperor's Armies; to which Post he arrived by a Dragon. He was by Birth a Swede, and not less than 66 Years of Age, most of which he spent in the Service of the House of Austria, and was in 1690, which is 47 Years ago, Colonel of an Imperial Regiment in the Netherlands, in the Service of King Charles II. of Spain. His Corpse was carried next Day at Night, according to his Will, without any Pomp, to the Capuchins Convent, where it was interred Yesterday Se'nnight, in a Vault which he caused to be made there, with 3 Volleys of the Small Arms of the whole Garrison, and 12 Pieces of Cannon.

The same Mail brings Advice from Francfort, dated last Wednesday Se'nnight, that Count Munich has gained a complete Victory over the Turks; of which they expect both the Confirmation and Particulars.

The Letters of the 10th Instant, O. S. from Vienna say, That the General Count Oliver Wallis is dead of an Apoplexy in the Imperial Army: That the Turks in a Sally from Widdin obliged the Besiegers to retire, and pursued them so far from the Fortress that they were quite surrounded by the Germans, and repulsed with the Loss of 480 Men. That the Number of the Imperialists who were killed, wounded, and drowned near Bagnaluck, amounts to 1041, and that the Turks lost above 3000; tho' 'tis certain, that never did the Turkish Cavalry make so furious an Attack.
